The site recommendation completely ignores all of the serious difficulties with the Yucca Mt. site. Your "scientists" are behaving much as scientists and engineers have whenever they practice their craft under the spell of wages, grant control, or corporate patronage. This is how "science" was practiced by many under Fascism and the corrupt pseudo-socialist Soviet system--and probably now in China and North Korea. Only what we have here is the U.S. version. Meanwhile, on the home front, the DOE violates the most minimal constitutional standards of due process, as well as the right of petition for redress of grievances and the administrative procedures act, Chapter 5.

Your callous disregard of the rights of Nevadans is not much different than your contempt for the rest of us who leave near the waste routes who cannot get to hearings in Nevada. This is a new low in the treatment of U.S. citizens. I thought only the NRC had truly callous disregard for the participation and opinions of citizens. Now I know that the DOE sets the low end parameter.
